This method of landing occupied considerable time and afford ed much amusement to all concerned. It was one of those instances where a man failed to be a hero, not only to his own valet, but even to the boatmen and coolies, and officialdoin for once appeared helplessly human. A Chief Justice, a Goneral, a Governor even, could scarcely with the best intentions, preserve a dignified appearance while being hauled up by a crane like a bale of goods and remaining occasionally for a like Nahomet's coffin.
